POLITICAL BY-PLAY

Miss Agnes McPhill, Progressive member for South East Grey, Ontario, is stumping in Winnipeg by-election against the Liberal candidate. Her appearance in that role is not at all consistent with the fact that on crucial questions the Government has been sustained by the votes of a detachment of Ontario Progressives. It is however quite in keeping with the general policy of the party to fight the Government at the polls, but to avoid bringing on a crisis and a general election by defeating it in Parliament. To keep the King Government in power, but by grace of Progressive votes—and therefore subject more or less to dictation—is evidently the objective of Progressive strategy. The losing of a by-election would not produce a crisis and lead to the dissolution of Parliament. Otherwise Miss McPhill would likely be spending the autumn somewhere else.

PERMISSION TO TRADE

Moscow is sending a mission to Canada to negotiate a trade agreement along the lines of Anglo-Russian arrangement. The substance of that convention is that either country maintains a commercial agency in the other, and that the exchange of goods is permitted. The British Government does not, of course assume responsibility for the payment of goods shipped to Russia. It is to be supposed that if the mission is made the Canadian government will like to keep itself free of accountability. On that condition there will be no ground for objection to the proposed arrangement. If Canadian manufacturers want to ship their products to the Soviet realm, and take chances on getting paid, there is no apparent reason why they should not be allowed to do so. The prospect is not bright for developing any considerable business that way, but it is not a bad thing to try for what there is, at their own risk, there is no occasion for the Government to stand in the way.

THE LEAGUE

Sir George Foster is a veteran of forty years of political warfare, a logician by birth, skilled in the art of pleading a cause and the tactics of controversy, and one of the great orators Canada has produced. There would be little to hope for from the League of Nations if Sir George could not make a persuasive case on its behalf. There is need at this time that some one undertake to tell the people of Canada just what the organization has accomplished, for the record does not speak for itself; and no one is better qualified to do it. The League has been running in poor luck, thanks mainly to the extravagant hopes which were encouraged by its authors. So far as the public are aware its two outstanding achievements consisted in getting itself ignored by Lenin and snubbed by Mussolini. The decision that it can compel peace long ago evaporated, and has left a popular impression that there is nothing of importance that it can do. What is being forgotten in the reaction of disappointment is that the League can encourage and exert influences for peace, and that this is all that any association of the kind should be expected to do. As a super-government the League was founded upon fraud and doomed to failure, for—with all respect to the variously interpreted clauses of the covenant—the signatory powers had no intention of surrendering their sovereign rights to any international bureaucracy, and their subsequent actions have clearly established the fact. But as an international agency for discouraging war the League has a real opportunity for usefulness, and the sooner that is recognized to be its function the sooner will it come to its services. If the League is content to keep pouring oil on the hot hearings of the dislocated machinery of Europe it will be doing all that it is permitted to do, and all that anybody should hold it responsible for.

ALBERTA MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

It is somewhat surprising to learn that the "bumper" crop means an increase of only three bushels per acre over that of last year, taking the whole wheat area of the Dominion into account. From returns in this district it might be supposed that the increase would be nearer ten bushels. Not all parts of Canada, however, have had as favorable conditions this summer as Alberta. In fact, of the western provinces, Manitoba has only two million bushels more, and Saskatchewan only two million bushels more. The other provinces show an increase of less than a million and a half bushels. Alberta is the real home of the bumper crop, and it is the yield here that has pulled the Dominion average up that extra three bushels per acre. The aggregate for this province is now estimated at 157,467,000 bushels, against 64,976,000 last year. It is Alberta that makes the difference, in fact, that turns a national deficit into a surplus as compared with last year's yield.

THE ONE THING DEFINITE

Premier Greenfield says he does not want the voter to "plump" for whichever alternative clause in the plebiscite seems to mean the kind of liquor regulation he wishes, but hopes he will also show which of the other proposals he has the least objection to. The voter would be more likely to do that if he knew exactly or even approximately what the other clauses mean. The first one is clear enough; it seems prohibition, with amendments to the existing law as such are required to make it more effective. The others are in varying degrees obscure. Nobody knows what interpretation the Legislature would place upon any of them if it is given the widest latitude. Still, less can be surmised what kind of a bill would be based upon that interpretation. And still less what the bill would contain when it got through the machinery of the Legislature. Excluding clause one, the plebiscite is not a referendum. It does not conform to the law that was passed to authorize and regulate such reference. To have dealt fairly with the voters, and to give the widest latitude, a copy of the bill which the Legislature would pass in the event of clauses "B", "C", or "D" receiving approval should have been prepared and made public. The ballot as submitted is an invitation to the voter to either endorse the present law or leave it to the Legislature to say what the liquor law is to be. The man who wants the liquor trade kept in hand would be blamed if he plumped for the one clause which he knows means curtailment to the practicable limit.

SEPTIMBER IMMIGRATION

During September, 23,449 new people entered the country. This compares with 22,449 in August, and 21,449 in July. The number of immigrants has been given those shaping the new immigration policy a good idea of the possibilities. Up to the end of September, over 136,000 immigrants had entered Canada since the first of the year, and immigration officials think that another 25,000 or more may be secured by the end. This would show an improvement on the 1922 showing by fully 15 per cent. During the year ending August, the value of the goods that came in from the United States was $1,449,000,000. In August, the value of the goods that came in from the United States was $1,449,000,000. In August, the value of the goods that came in from the United States was $1,449,000,000.

WILL

You'll meet with many ups and downs, learn caution and over the line. You'll meet with many smiles and frowns, and will All men you cannot hope to please, large numbers With years ripe judgment will dictate your counsel Look squarely at your fellow man, a challenge to you. He slow to take offense at things, but isn't never look. Don't show too much elation when you swing a lucky. And if you're broke don't let the world catch on to how you feel. When once you've thrashed a problem out don't hesitate one jump. Don't let a jump decision if you will or if you'll not. The one who is not a jump decision if you will or if you'll not. The one who is not a jump decision if you will or if you'll not.

"All the Comforts of a Home"

The charm and comfort of an open fire in your den or living room has always appealed to every home maker. In this climate there are many uses for the open fire. You require heat in the spring and fall when it would be wasteful to put a fire in your furnace. There is scarcely a home that does not need extra heat somewhere many times each winter.

Just Breathe "Catharzone"
Count ten—a bad cold is relieved by Catharzone—wait one minute and you will feel the muzzling influence on a sore, irritated throat. No failure with "Catharzone" as it relieves because you can breathe a healing vapor to the very spot that needs help.

We have in stock a large assortment of the HUMPHREY HADAMANTON open grates. We have designs to fit into any fireplace, or which can be set up in any room where it can be connected with a chimney. In these heaters there is embodied a wonderful method of heating by gas. The response is immediate, the heat liveliest, and the radiating glow is inviting and charming. We would like to have you look these over. Our terms on open fire grates, heaters, ranges, etc., are reasonable—10 per cent discount for cash 30 days after gas is turned into the system, or spread over twelve monthly payments.
